Frans Lanting Images Chosen for Christie's Auction of the 40 Greatest Nature Photographs of All Time

Santa Cruz, CA, April 21, 2010. The Frans Lanting Studio is honored to announce that three of Frans Lanting's classic images have been chosen for inclusion in a unique collection that represents the 40 most important nature photographs of all time.

The photographs were selected for the gala international "Green Auction" by Christie's in New York , which will be conducted on April 22, 2010, the 40th anniversary of Earth Day. Proceeds from the auction will benefit leading conservation organizations, including Conservation International, Oceana, and the Natural Resources Defense Council.

The collection of 40 images represents a wide range of styles and genres and spans more than 100 years of the history of photography. The images were chosen by members of the International League of Conservation Photographers (iLCP), a fellowship of the world's top professional conservation photographers. More than 100 photographers and editors associated with the iLCP nominated images they considered to be "the best," based on factors such as aesthetics, uniqueness, historical and scientific significance, and contribution to conservation efforts.

The 25 photographers represented in this prestigious collection of images range from Ansel Adams and Edward Weston to William Anders, the Apollo 8 astronaut who made the iconic image of the Earth rising over the Moon.

The three Frans Lanting images selected for the collection are "Water Lilies, Botswana 1989," "Tortoises at Dawn, Galápagos Islands 1984," and "Twilight of the Giants, Botswana 1989."

The complete collection of images, along with stories about them by the photographers, may be viewed at: <http://www.flickr.com/photos/ilcptop40/sets/72157623774840478/>
