PHOTO TRIVIA

Last month we asked: What was the first 35mm single lens reflex camera? What was the year it was first manufactured and by whom? It was the Kine Exacta, first manufactured by Exacta in 1937. A correct answer was submitted by Ira Nemeroff.

For September: What camera manufacturer captured the No. 1 slot in U.S. digital-camera sales for 2005?

The Radiant Vista Inspirational Photography Weekend.

The Livingston Camera Club received an e-mail regarding this event; President Rick Perkowski forwarded for inclusion in Cable Release.

The Radiant Vista Inspirational Photography Weekend will be held on November 11th & 12th, 2006 in the Philadelphia area, at The Valley Forge Scanticon Hotel and Conference Center in King of Prussia. This is a two day event with two different tracks for each participant. Photographers get to learn about exciting creativity and capture strategies, as well as digital processing in Photoshop. We are holding this event. Details, including a schedule and course descriptions, for the weekend can be found at:

<http://www.radiantvista.com/workshop/workshop19/>

Special club pricing has been created for the event that we're excited to offer to your members. Tuition for club members is only $139.00 for the two full days. For participants to receive the club pricing, they must register with a group code. The code for the Livingston Camera Club is: PHL139LCC.

The Radiant Vista web site was launched on November 1st, 2005 and is now visited daily by over 3000 photographers throughout the world. It specializes in free downloadable video instruction and each day new video content is posted for download, with much of the website being based off of critique and treatments of viewer submitted photographs. The educational theme for the website is "In a perfect world..." and perfect world suggestions are offered as positive and reinforcing ways for photographers to improve their work and not be discouraged.
